FOREWORD

The Sixth Illinois Constitutional Convention completed its deliberations almost eighteen years ago, but interest in its debates remains strong. Legislators, attorneys, and scholars continue to consult Convention proceedings for the intent behind the provisions of the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

The Illinois State Library has long been concerned with rendering assistance to these and other researchers. In 1972, it published a two-part index to the preliminary transcripts of the Constitution Convention. Part I was arranged by subject, Part II by Constitution article and section. These indexes provided temporary access to the Convention Proceedings prior to completion of the final written version.

In July of 1972, the Office of the Secretary of State published a seven volume Record of Proceedings (of the) Sixth Illinois Constitutional Convention. Volumes II through V contain the verbatim transcripts of the floor deliberations. Although this final edition includes a subject index to the verbatim transcripts, it does not provide access to debates by Constitution articles and section number. In order to fill that need, the Illinois State Library is issuing this revised version of Part II of its 1972 index, now keyed to the printed volumes, in the hope that it will prove useful to lawyers, judges, and others studying the Illinois Constitution. For details on content and arrangement, see "How to Use This Index".

Note: The 1988 index was retyped in 2004 by the Legislative Research Unit, with typographical errors and stylistic inconsistencies corrected. The following specific changes in 2004 should be noted:

- (1) The 1988 index has two pages numbered 63. In this version they have been numbered "63A" and "63B" to preserve the numbering of later pages.
- (2) The 1972 and 1988 indexes omit the constitutional convention history of Article VII, subsection 6(l). That information has been supplied in this version.
- (3) On some pages of the 1988 index, footnotes designated "*" or "" lack corresponding marks at the places in the text to which they refer. Those missing footnote marks have been supplied in this version. Also, all footnotes have been moved from within the text (where the 1988 version put them) to the bottoms of the pages to which they apply.
- (4) The 1988 index put Article IV, subsection 5(a) (Frequency of Sessions) after subsection 3(a). It has been moved to its proper location.
- (5) A table of contents listing each article and section of the 1970 Constitution has been added, beginning on page i. It is hyperlinked to the 1988 index.

HOW TO USE THIS INDEX

To locate debates or any part of the 1970 Illinois Constitution, consult the index under the appropriate article, section or subsection number. Debate on each of these components is listed chronologically for first, second, and third readings. For sections where complete separation between subsections is impossible, footnotes indicate the system of division.

An equal sign (=) after a section number indicates that the section was re-numbered during debate on the floor. The figures preceding and following the equal sign denote the original and the revised section numbers.

The transcripts of the floor debates are printed in Volumes II through V of Record of Proceedings (of the) Sixth Illinois Constitutional Convention. The volumes are continuously paged as follows: Volumes II, pp. 1-1200; Volume III, pp. 1201-2504; Volume IV, pp. 2505-3664; Volume V, pp. 3665-4678 and Index.

This index provides access to Constitutional Convention debate by Constitution article and section only. For a subject approach to the debates, consult the Index which begins on Page 4681 (Volume V) of the Proceedings.

ARTICLE VII, SECTIONS 6 THROUGH 9*

- * The sections dealing with home rule units, non-home rule units, and special local governmental districts (approximately equivalent to Section 6 through 9 of Article VII of the Constitution) present a great deal of awkwardness to both the indexer and the researcher. In many cases it has been difficult or nearly impossible to trace a section or subsection in an unbroken line from first through third readings. There are many instances of renumbering and rearrangement of subsections, as well as of additions on the floor. Often, subsections have been included with others because they were together during first or second reading and it has been impossible to separate them. The user is cautioned to be aware of these problems as he works with Sections 6 through 9 of Article VII.

ARTICLE VII, SECTION 6
